

Toni Vaughn

Except for working in Kentucky for less than two years, Toni Kornegay Vaughn is a lifelong, seventh-generation Alabamian and a community advocate running to represent Alabama House District 45. She was shaped by Alabama — born, raised, and educated in its public school system.

Born in Coffeetown, Alabama, Toni began elementary school there, spent grades four through eleven in Bibb County schools, and entered the University of Alabama after her junior year. She earned her degree in Finance and built a distinguished career in the insurance claims industry, rising to Senior Regional Vice President, overseeing operations across the Southeastern United States. She received numerous local, state, and regional awards for outstanding business leadership.

Toni is the daughter of an educator and a veteran, the wife of a veteran, and the mother of a registered nurse. She believes parenting decisions belong with families — not the state. She and her husband have been married for 45 years and have lived in North Shelby County throughout their marriage.

Committed to public education and community service, Toni was active in Hoover schools as a room mother, band volunteer, and chair of three major arts fundraisers at Spain Park High School. She has also served her church as a Sunday School teacher, deacon, and youth leader. Toni remains active in her college sorority, mentoring students and serving in fundraising and leadership roles in the local alumnae chapter.

She stands for strong public schools, affordable and accessible healthcare, and an economy that works for working families — not special interests. Guided by her faith, family values, and deep respect for the Constitution, Toni is committed to fairness, accountability, opportunity, and equal protection under the law for every citizen.
